

NOISY, GOOD-HUMORED THROUGH FLASHTIGHTS TICKET IN PRINCETON

Crowd Estimated at Thirty Thousand Watch Tribune
Bulletins.

NO ROUGHNESS DISPLAYED

Police Handle the Enormous Outpouring of Humanity in Broadway in Creditable Manner.

It was a happy, smiling, good-natured election night crowd, a crowd that was out for the joy of being out, that blew horns and banged cymbals, regardless of who appeared at the moment to be in the lead.

There were few ticklers or feather dusters; the police saw to that, though there was little occasion for their interference, the crowd contenting itself with noise and good humor manifest in Park Row in front of the Tribune Building, in Broadway, in Herald and Longacre squares.

The outpouring was enormous, the spaces in front of the various newspaper bulletins being choked with an expectant mass of humanity, while on the sidewalks a never-ending stream of men and women flowed past to the discordant music of fishbells and cowbells.

It was New York in its most characteristic phase; New York in all its crudity, its vitality, its law-respecting irresponsibility. There was no brutality; in Broadway in particular a large proportion of the crowd was composed of young girls and women with their escorts, and the behavior of the bystanders was always courteous, more courteous indeed than has often been the case in past years.

In front of the Tribune Building the crowd watching the bulletins was enormous, a conservative estimate placing it at least thirty thousand. It was massed on the sidewalks and extended into City Hall Park nearly to Broadway. The horns and cowbells kept up a furious hubbub until the morning hours, and between the bulletins the Tribune's moving picture machines furnished amusement that was abundantly appreciated.

The sympathizers with the various candidates cheered moderately any gain shown by their respective standard bearers, though the early returns afforded little comfort to the usually loud-lunged Progressives, and the Democratic lead showed itself so early and so definitely that it largely discounted the reason for later enthusiasm among the Wilson and Sulzer admirers. In short, those who were interested in the returns contented themselves with watching them quietly and seriously, while those who were out for enjoyment appeared to be determined to enjoy themselves no matter who might be elected, and the early Democratic majorities seemed to have little effect on the way or the other on the volume or enthusiasm of their noise.

The police arrangements were admirable, the officers keeping clear and compelling the crowd to move constantly in all places except those directly in front of the bulletins.

WOMEN BULL MOOSERS OUT Philadelphia Polls Manned by Suffragists for First Time.

(By Telegram to the Tribune.)

Philadelphia, Nov. 5.—In many of the districts throughout the city the unusual scene of women manning the polls was witnessed for the first time here to-day. They were the auxiliary members of the Bull Moose movement and they supplied the voters and the workers and the watchers who were laboring for the Roosevelt cause with coffee and sandwiches. This precaution was taken in order that none of the workers might have to leave the polls until long after the count has been completed to-night.

In this respect the election is most unusual in this city. Heretofore there have been close elections both sides have been willing to declare a truce while the workers of the opposite parties went out for meals. With the addition of a third party and the fact that all were on the watch all day long, no quarter was asked and none was given.

THE WEATHER REPORT.

Official Record and Forecast.—Washington, Nov. 5.—A disturbance that is moving over the plains states is causing rains in the middle Mississippi Valley, Eastern Kansas and Oklahoma. While an extensive area of low barometric pressure over the northwestern Canadian provinces has caused rain in Washington, Oregon, Northern California, Idaho, Western Montana and Northwestern Wyoming. In all other parts of the country the weather remains fair. Temperatures have risen generally over the eastern half of the country and have changed little elsewhere.

The indications are that the southwestern disturbance will move east and cause rains Wednesday in the Gulf and south Atlantic states and Wednesday night and Thursday in the middle Atlantic and New England states. The weather will be generally fair, except that rains will continue in the north Rocky Mountain region.

Temperatures will not change decidedly in any part of the country during the next forty-eight hours.

Forecast for Special Localities.—For Eastern New York and Southern New England, increasing cloudiness to-day, probably followed by rain to-night and Thursday; moderate south winds.

For Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia, increasing cloudiness to-day, probably followed by rain; Thursday, rain, moderate south winds.

For Northern New England, fair to-day; Thursday, probably rain; moderate south winds.

For Western Pennsylvania and Western New York, unsettled weather with rain to-day; Thursday, clearing; moderate south winds becoming variable.

COLONEL CASTS 265TH BALLOT AT OYSTER BAY

Goes to Polling Place Surrounded by Bodyguard of Servants and Detectives.

BIG CROWD GREETED HIM

Thinks He "Cinched" Senator
Root and Other Lawyers in Controversy Over the Courts.

(By Telegram to the Tribune.)

Oyster Bay, Long Island, Nov. 5.—Colonel Roosevelt voted at 12:06 o'clock this afternoon, remaining in the polling place just four minutes to cast his straight Progressive ticket. He also approved of four propositions submitted to Oyster Bay by the Town Council. Then he returned immediately to Sagamore Hill. After luncheon he went out for a walk with Mrs. Roosevelt.

The arrival of the ex-President at the fire engine house, which was the polling place for the village, was awaited all the morning by a large and curious crowd. Several camera men from New York were among those present. Colonel Roosevelt came down in his big touring car surrounded by two private detectives, James Amos, his body servant; Ralph Amos, his butler; Howard Brooks and Charles Lee, his coachman; William Bailey and William Cart, the gardeners, and Arthur Merrym, his chauffeur.

The colonel paused good naturedly on his way into the building to "snap" by the camera men, and as he emerged into the street he again posed for a sun-light exposure. The photographers were so insistent for more that the colonel's patience was a trifle strained.

The ex-President cast ballot No. 265. When he had handed it to the proper official he turned to chat with a group of TAFT SLOW IN VOTING Occupies the Full Five Minutes in Polling Booth.

Cincinnati, Nov. 5.—President Taft took the allotted five minutes when he voted shortly after noon to-day. He cast each of the six separate ballots, five of which are devoted to local affairs.

Before visiting the polling booth, the President visited Cincinnati friends, including Representative Nicholas Longworth, son-in-law of Colonel Roosevelt. President Taft was cheered as he drove through the streets on his way to vote.
